

Tailored Deposits. Forward Start Security Agreement.

Why do you need to enter into this Forward Start Security Agreement and what does it do?

You will need to complete a Forward Start Security Agreement if you open a new deposit with BankSA that exhibits at least one of the following characteristics:

- the new deposit commences on a forward starting date; and/or
- you have agreed to make further principal contributions to your deposit at a future point in time.

As a result, BankSA is taking risk on your ability to meet this future obligation. The main purpose of this Security Agreement is to allow BankSA to make deductions from your existing BankSA deposit if you are unable to or do not make your agreed future principal contributions to your new deposit. These deductions will be for any loss BankSA suffers because of your decision not to proceed with the agreed principal contributions. Therefore you should not enter into this Forward Start Security Agreement if you do not intend or expect to be in a position to apply the balance of your existing BankSA deposit at maturity to make principal contributions to your new deposit. This is not an exhaustive summary of this Forward Start Security Agreement – you should read it in its entirety before you agree to it.
